SECTION ONE: LIBERAL AND LIBERAL DEMOCRAT CANDIDATES 1945-2024

SECTION TWO: SDP CANDIDATES in the GENERAL ELECTIONS of 1983 and 1987

PREFACE

The North West Region was barren territory for the Liberal/Liberal Democratic Party for decades from the 1920s with a high number of constituencies left unfought at many General Elections. After a brief revival in 1950, in common with most regions in the UK, when the Party widened the front considerably, there ensued a further bleak period until the 1970s. In 1983-87, as with other regions, approximately half the constituencies were fought by the SDP as partners in the Alliance.

30 or more candidates listed below have fought elections in constituencies in other regions, one in as many as five. Cross-checking of these individuals has taken time but otherwise the compilation of this regional Index has been relatively straight forward compared with others. Special note has been made of the commendable achievements of 'pioneer' candidates who courageously carried the fight into the vast swathe of Labour-held constituencies across the industrial zone of the region beginning in the 1970s. The Northwest Region has produced its fair share of personalities who have flourished in fields outside parliamentary politics. Particularly interesting are the candidates, some of whom were briefly MPs, whose long careers began just after World War I and who remained active as candidates until well after World War II.

I am greatly indebted to Michael Braham, solicitor, currently Deputy Lord Lieutenant of Merseyside, who has forwarded much invaluable information on Northwest Region personalities which he has generously allowed me to incorporate into the directory. Long associated with the Southport LDA, he is the author of a comprehensive history of the Liberal/Liberal Democratic party in that town, covering the period 1885-1995. There can be few constituency parties anywhere in the country which have had such an impact upon their region in terms of parliamentary candidates, regional officers or distinguished personalities in public life.

There were two by-elections, designated (i), (ii) at Bootle in 1990, caused by the untimely demise, within a very short time span, of successive Labour MPs. Following the recognised practice, the Liberal Democrats did not nominate a candidate at the Speaker's seat of Chorley at the General Elections of 2019 or 2024. (omission of Rusholme by error)+++

THE MARTELL PLAN

The Martell Plan, mentioned in passing throughout the regional directories was an electoral strategy adopted by the Liberal Party for the General Election of 1950. It was named after Edward Martell qv (Greater London), a party 'grandee' of the immediate post-war years who advocated the nomination of over 150 additional candidates in constituencies which had little or no Liberal organization nor history of Liberal activity in recent years. Most were adopted only days before nominations closed, many at the eleventh hour. Martell's objective was to increase the Liberal challenge to a level at which the Party would be enabled to form a government, presuming enough MPs were elected. His supporters, among them enthusiastic younger Party members including Jeremy Thorpe, Isaac Hyam qqv, believed that a steadily growing number of adoptions being announced in the media would create a momentum of its own in the minds of the electorate.

The goal of fighting every mainland constituency in the UK was finally achieved appropriately under the leadership of Jeremy Thorpe at the General Election of October 1974. The broad front was reduced, marginally, at the following election of 1979. In both 1983 and 1987 the Liberals and their allies, the SDP, each contested roughly 50% of the UK parliamentary constituencies, avoiding contests against each other save in a handful of cases. Since 1992 the Liberal Democrats have contested every constituency in mainland UK, save for that held by The Speaker and a handful of other instances, at every successive general election. In recent times Party nominees who are nominated at the last minute in unpromising constituencies, simply to show the flag, have come to be termed 'paper candidates.' Virtually every candidate at recent general elections, however, has been approved by the Party's Parliamentary Candidates' Committee and adopted according to formal procedure.

Party refers to the Liberal Party / Liberal Democrats, unless otherwise stated.

Parliamentary elections fought by a candidate in the Index of any individual region appear in bold type thus: Westmorland 1945. Constituencies fought by a candidate in other regions appear in standard type. The names of constituencies have changed over the years as a result of parliamentary boundary changes.

Note: there were four two-member constituencies in Lancashire, and one in Cheshire, at the 1945 General Election, denoted 'n' after the date. At one of these constituencies, Preston, the Liberals nominated a single candidate.

KENNEDY, (Sir) Ludovic Henry Coverley, b Edinburgh 1919, (his father, Edward, a career naval officer, was captain of the armed merchantman HMS Rawalpindi, sunk early in WW II with nearly all hands in a valiant attempt to delay and take on two German battleships); ed Eton, where he played in a jazz group with Humphrey Lyttleton, Oxford U, completing his studies after naval service World War II. A journalist, he joined BBC Radio, became a TV presenter, appearing on numerous prestigious programmes, e g Panorama, and in several highly praised series. One of the most respected media personalities of his day. He campaigned relentlessly for many victims of miscarriages of justice over the years. His voice adapted very well to the public platform, where he proved to be a powerful and persuasive speaker. He wrote a long list of acclaimed books on crimes and trials. M Moira Shearer, ballet dancer and film actor. Perhaps his best-known book is 10 Rillington Place (1960) which led eventually to the posthumous pardon for Timothy Evans, unjustly hanged for the murder of his wife and child. The crime had been committed by the serial murderer, John Christie, who was later hanged. The revelations in the book were a major contribution to the campaign for the abolition of capital punishment in the UK. He became a fearless opponent of Britain's adversarial system of justice, calling for its replacement by an inquisitorial system though he never formulated his ideas in a full-length study. His ideas on this subject permeate 36 Murders and Two Immoral Earnings (2003), which includes studies of the cases of Derek Bentley and the Birmingham Six. Increasingly he questioned whether the police were worthy of the traditional trust of the public, casting doubts upon the integrity of officers of all ranks in many cases involving injustice. His Trial of Stephen Ward (1964) is a devastating indictment of the corruption of the judiciary and its manipulation by political interests. (qv A. P. Marshall, West Midland Region)

Though generally a low-key interviewer and presenter, he was adept at making pertinent, dramatic interventions in TV discussion programmes e. g. when the career of a recently deceased, errant Conservative MP who happened to be a relative of Kennedy and his intimacy with notorious criminal gang leaders was being discussed, Kennedy added "and he was also a shit of the highest order."

Kennedy's relationship with the Party was sporadic, interrupted at one stage by his joining the Scottish Nationalists platform. After a long absence, he re-appeared in 1988-89 to support the motion at the Blackpool Special Assembly calling for the merger of the Liberals and the SDP. He again resigned from the Party to contest Devizes in 2001 as an independent, advocating the legalising of voluntary euthanasia. He subsequently re-joined the Party. An atheist, latterly mbr of the British Humanist Association he strongly opposed attempts by Catholics in the Party who sought to revise the Termination of Pregnancies Act. His crusading liberalism made him many powerful enemies in the Establishment. He was knighted for his services to journalism on the recommendation of Prime Minister, John Major, after his nomination, years before, had been vetoed by Margaret Thatcher. In hindsight, it is likely his independent mind and spirit would have precluded him from accepting the discipline required of an MP and loyal member of the Party in Parliament, had he been elected; he was a cousin of the now discredited Conservative MP and broadcaster, the late Sir Robert, later Lord Boothby; d Salisbury 2009; Rochdale by-e 1958, 1959

SMITH, Cyril, later Sir Cyril, MBE, b Rochdale 1928, in his own words 'illegitimate, deprived, poor;' ed Rochdale b g s, Todmorden Tech Coll; throughout his life associated with the Unitarians; said to have made a speech in favour of a Liberal cand in 1945 general election; activist with NLYL 1948-50, agent at Stockport from 1948, he was advised to join Labour to further his career, being appointed Labour agent for Ashton-under-Lyme 1951; Rochdale MBC 1952, Mayor 1966, Freeman 1993; he campaigned against the Liberal cand Ludovic Kennedy qv at the by-election in 1958 and again in 1959; held various chairmanships including those relating to youth affairs; broke with Labour in 1966 and shortly after re-joined the Liberals; adopted as PPC for Rochdale after the well-established incumbent, Garth Pratt qv (East Midlands Region), was unceremoniously de-selected amid justifiable claims of irregular procedures.

Smith's victory at the by-election in 1972 was, however, a splendid tonic for the Party, still reeling after the setback of 1970, and helped to quicken the momentum leading up to the General Election of February 1974. Of immense presence, weighing nearly 30 stones, largely due, it was claimed in his defence, to life-long glandular problems rather than over-eating, he became an immediately recognisable public figure, his bluff, no-nonsense plain-speaking Lancashire voice and good humour, soon endearing him to a wide following through frequent media appearances. His positive appeal to working-class voters was instrumental in re-establishing a Liberal presence in industrial constituencies in the North. Endless distasteful comments over the years about his size apparently caused him little concern. He was appointed Chief Whip in the Commons by Jeremy Thorpe. He showed himself wanting in the role in times of crisis and was sacked while in hospital, by Thorpe, at the outset of the scandal which led to the latter's resignation as leader in 1976. He defied the Party line on several issues including opposing the Termination of Pregnancies Act and voicing support for the retention of capital punishment. He was opposed to the merger with the SDP in 1988 contending that the Party would have fared better had it not taken place. He retired from the Commons in 1992 and was succeeded by Liz Lynne qv. The fact that he was not granted a Life Peerage at this stage has taken on a sinister significance in the light of subsequent events and revelations.

There had been strong suspicions during his lifetime of his alleged physical and sexual abuse over many years of youths in care homes and detention centres in his aegis which apparently were not seriously investigated by the police and/or officially covered up. Shortly after his death details of the extent of his iniquitous misconduct were made widely known, leaving an indelible stain on his memory. In 2008 it was also disclosed that Smith had made public statements claiming that the industrial practices of the asbestos firm, Turner and Newall, in his constituency, presented no danger to the public or the environment, contrary to the evidence. It was revealed later he was a substantial shareholder in the firm; d 2010; author of Reflections from Rochdale, a short autobiographical sketch (Lib Dem Publications 1997); Smith was the subject of book by a subsequent Labour MP for Rochdale, Simon Danczuk, (who in turn proved to have had a dubious past); Smith's half-brother Norman qv (Greater London) had a parallel career in local Liberal politics; Rochdale 1970, by-e 1972, 1974 Feb, Oct, 1979, 1983, 1987, MP 1972-92; see Dictionary of Liberal Biography

General Elections 1983 and 1987

Extreme difficulty has been experienced in tracking down even basic details of the biographies of most former SDP candidates. With notable exceptions, the majority appear to have made no impression anywhere in public life or indeed in any field of human endeavour, though research will continue. As commentators noted at the time, most of them were worthy but anonymous individuals, plucked from obscurity. Apart from those few who continued their political activities with the merged Parties after 1988, most of them returned to oblivion.
